A 2004 geometrical analysis of earlier research into the Great Mosque of Kairouan (670) reveals a consistent application of the golden ratio throughout the design. They found ratios close to the golden ratio in the overall layout and in the dimensions of the prayer space, the court, and the minaret. However, the areas with ratios close to the golden ratio were not part of the original plan, and ...

As the form of fixed-hour prayer developed in the Christian monastic communities in the East and West, the Offices grew both more elaborate and more complex, but the basic cycle of prayer still provided the structure for daily life in monasteries. By the fourth century, the elements of the canonical hours were more or less established. For secular (non-monastic) clergy and lay people, the fixed ...

This article shows the proof of a supernatural design to the Scriptures, impossible to be accomplished by accident. The design is in a multi-layered effect which shows a most impressive design which God must have intended to refute atheists and others who would deny that the source of Scripture is God.

Immanuel Kant (1724–1804) is the central figure in modern philosophy. He synthesized early modern rationalism and empiricism, set the terms for much of nineteenth and twentieth century philosophy, and continues to exercise a significant influence today in metaphysics, epistemology, ethics, political philosophy, aesthetics, and other fields.

Relative to the second form of design, scientific evidence indirectly verifies that (1) an higher-intelligence designs and produces each material physical-event (i.e. physical-system). (2) An higher-intelligence designs and produces the intertwining of the collection of material physical-events that comprises each moment during the development of a universe.
